Raspberry Varieties

Autumn Britten: Everbearing, large, medium to bright red berries with firmer fruit than 'Autumn Bliss', its sister seedling. Good flavor, consistent producer. Erect canes need support because of high berry yield. Ripens in early fall, bridging the gap between late summer and fall (everbearing) ripening varieties.

Fall Gold: Everbearing, large to very large conical golden berry. Extremely sweet. Excellent for fresh eating and processing. Has vigorous and productive canes. First crop ripens in July and second crop from late August until first hard frost.

Meeker: Summerbearing, large thimble shaped firm deep, rich red fruit with high sugar content and superior flavor. Excellent home garden variety for fresh eating, freezing, and canning. Very productive with a long harvest season in June and July. Developed at Washington State University.

Munger Black: Small to medium sized fruit are blue-black, firm and sweet with a strong, delicious flavor. Fruit ripens from mid-June to mid-July. Excellent for fresh eating, preserves, and freezing. Stiff, upright canes, very hardy and disease resistant variety.

Willamette: Summerbearing, large to very large fruit. Very firm cone-like fruit is deep dark red when ripe. Lower sugar content with a rich and slightly tart taste. Outstanding disease resistance. Requires good drainage. Ripens in June.

Trailing Blackberry Varieties

Thornless Loganberry: A blackberry x red raspberry cross. Light red large berries with unique, tart flavor. Makes excellent wine and pies. Ripens in June.

Marionberry: Medium to large, medium firm, sweet, bright shiny black berries. Faint wild blackberry flavor. Excellent quality for fresh eating. Particularly recommended for desserts. Vigorous thorny plants with slightly upright strong canes. Ripens in August.

Sylvanberry: A boysenberry x marionberry cross. Large, shiny black fruit. Mild very sweet flavor. Very high quality fruit similar to marionberry. Vigorous highly productive, thorny, trailing vines. Disease and rot resistant.

Tayberry: Loganberry \ Black Raspberry cross with large, medium red, soft fruit with an astringent flavor when fresh. Ripens early. Excellent for preserves and pies. Very strong and vigorous.
